7 Processing of Special Categories of Personal Data and Criminal Conduct Data

7.1 Some types of personal data are considered to be sensitive and are accorded greater protection under data protection legislation. These include:

- (a) Special Categories of Personal Data which include personal data that reveals racial or ethnic origin, political opinion, religious or philosophical beliefs, trade-union membership, and the processing of genetic data, biometric data in order to uniquely identify a person or data concerning health, sex life and sexual orientation. Data concerning health covers Personal Data relating to the physical or mental health of an individual which reveals information about the individual's health status; and
- (b) Criminal Conduct Data which is Personal Data relating to criminal convictions or offences or related security measures.

7.2 As a general rule, we do not process Special Categories of Personal Data or Criminal Conduct Data. However, in order to perform our obligations as the registered keeper of the vehicle and provide our services effectively, we are required to process sensitive information about nominated drivers in the following limited circumstances:

- (a) Health/medical information: As detailed at clause 6.3(g) above, we may process health information in the course of providing services in response to an accident or Vehicle damage/loss. This is due to the fact that we may receive accident reports in our capacity as the registered keeper of the vehicle and these sometimes contain a small amount of health/medical information. We do not collect this information by any other means or for any other purpose.
- (b) This health information may be shared with law enforcement agencies, insurers or impacted parties, in the event of an accident or a potential legal claim.
- (c) Criminal Conduct Data: As detailed at clauses 6.3(f), 6.3(g), and, where applicable, 6.3(m) and 6.3(n) above, we may process information relating to criminal offences or potential criminal offences. We may also receive information relating to criminal convictions from law enforcement agencies or the DVLA, which may arise in correspondence that is incidental to our role as the registered keeper of the vehicle.

- (d) Personal data may be shared for this purpose with law enforcement agencies, your organisation (our customer) to advise that a Vehicle leased to it may be involved, and the DVLA.

7.3 In addition to the usual appropriate technical and organisational measures we implement to ensure the security and integrity of the personal data processed by us, we may implement additional measures in relation to Special Categories of personal data and Criminal Conduct Data, as appropriate. These may include segregation, pseudonymisation or restriction of access to the data.

7.4 We rely on your explicit consent as the lawful basis for processing the personal data outlined at clause 7.2 above. This consent will have been obtained from you by your organisation on our behalf prior to commencement of the vehicle lease. You are free to withdraw your consent at any time, by contacting us using the details provided at paragraph 16 below. However, in the event that you withdraw your consent, you will not be able to continue driving our Vehicle, for the following reasons:

- (a) In our capacity as the registered keeper of the vehicle, we need to be able to receive reports relating to any accident or damage caused to the vehicle. We are not in control of the content of these reports, which will in some cases also be used for insurance purposes. Given the relevance of health information to establishing and quantifying insurance claims, it is highly likely that these reports will contain health information. We would require your consent to process this information. In the event that you withdrew such consent, we would suffer the disproportionate impact of not being able to process accident reports relating to our own vehicle.
- (b) There is a presumption of liability on the part of the registered keeper of a vehicle in relation to most motoring offences. Where such offences amount to a criminal offence, we would require your consent to process your personal data in relation to the offence to transfer liability accordingly. In the event that you withdrew such consent, we would suffer the disproportionate impact of being held liable for any motoring offences committed by you in the course of the vehicle lease.

7.5 Please note that in any instance where you withdraw your consent we reserve our right to rely on an alternative lawful bases (where necessary in order for us to exercise or defend our legal rights or Substantial Public Interest) to undertake minimal processing, where such bases are available and it is absolutely necessary and proportionate for us to do so.
